Children don’t travel over 1,000 miles alone on a whim. Right now, the children fleeing are threatened, terrified, and alone.

I never met my father. He was murdered before I was born.

THESE CHILDREN ARE HUMAN BEINGS WITH INDIVIDUAL STORIES AND WE HAVE SOLUTIONS.

6 SOLUTIONS

1. RESPECT FAMILIES
   Allow parents or legal guardians from El Salvador or Honduras who reside legally in the U.S. under Temporary Protected Status (TPS) to apply for their minor children to reunite. Their minor children may be residing either in the U.S. or in their country of origin and their status would be linked to their parents. This will immediately reduce immigration court backlogs and apply to an estimated 30-40% of the children surrendering at the borders.

2. KEEP KIDS OUT OF THE COURTROOM
   Institute a Children’s Corps based on the Asylum Officer Corps model. Children Corps officers would be trained in child-sensitive interview techniques and Best Interest Determination standards. They would determine if a child is eligible for legal relief such as asylum, Special Immigrant Juvenile Status (SIJS), Trafficking Victims Visa (T-Visa) or other forms of legal relief. This would move the adjudication process from an adversarial, judicial process to an administrative process for most children. Those who are not eligible for legal status would be placed in removal proceedings. It is estimated that 40% to 60% may be eligible for legal protection.

3. HELP CHILDREN AVOID THE DANGEROUS JOURNEY
   In-Country Processing allows applicants to apply for refugee status in their home country. The children would have to meet the U.S. refugee definition, be otherwise admissible, and would be resettled in an orderly fashion. In-country processing has been used in the past for the resettlement of Soviet Jews, Vietnamese, and Cubans, so they could avoid life-threatening escapes. Other countries in North or South America may also be willing to accept children for resettlement.

4. ENGAGE THE UN REFUGEE AGENCY (UNHCR)
   Unaccompanied children and adults can receive international protection from UNHCR after they have fled their home country. Through long-established procedures, the UNHCR could then refer their cases for resettlement to a receiving country. The U.S. Department of State coordinates the program, the refugees are interviewed by a USCIS Officer and, if approved for entry, undergo extensive security and medical clearances prior to being moved to the U.S.

5. FORGIVE THE CHILDREN
   Grant Children’s Protected Status (CPS) to all unaccompanied children who have already been brought into custody. As precedent, the Cubans and Haitians who arrived illegally during the Mariel Boatlift in 1980 were given Cuban/Haitian Entrant Status. Simultaneously with the announcement of CPS, the government could announce a cut-off-date for all future arrivals. After the cut-off date, new arrivals would be subject to expedited removal. Granting CPS will relieve the government of the burden and cost of adjudicating the cases of thousands of unaccompanied minors. This will increase capacity for the Department of Homeland Security to handle other immigration cases.

6. INTRODUCE HOPE
   Create a Regulated Entry Procedure (REP) for 10,000 Unaccompanied Immigrant Children per year per country from Honduras, El Salvador, and Guatemala. As precedent, to end the Mariel Boatlift in 1980, a lottery was established which allows 20,000 Cubans to enter the US every year. The hope of “winning” has kept Cubans from hazarding the ocean for the last 34 years. The Central American Children would be permitted to enter the U.S. legally through a regulated system managed and processed by the U.S. Government.
